

Registration for Food Waste Collectors

(Applicable for collectors engaging in the collection and delivery of food waste and serve as a reference for food waste generating establishments, including premises such as shopping malls, markets, restaurants, eateries, and food factories)

Introduction

1. The Organic Resources Recovery Centre Phase 1 (ORRC1), managed by Environmental Protection Department's (EPD) is located at Siu Ho Wan, North Lantau. With a treatment capacity of 200 tonnes per day, the ORRC1 has started intake food waste from the commercial and industrial (C&I) sectors since July 2018.

Food waste after source separation is a recyclable. The SSFW collected and transported to the ORRC1 will be converted to biogas as renewable energy. The residues produced in the treatment process can also be recycled into compost. At the same time, carbon emissions caused by the disposal of food waste at landfills are reduced.

Source Separated Food Waste

2. To facilitate the effective and smooth operation of the ORRC1, inert materials or impurities (such as plastic utensils, polyfoam, plastic bottles, aluminum cans, glass bottles, etc.) contained in the SSFW (i.e. food waste separated from the municipal solid waste (MSW) at source) should be less than 20% by weight.

Registered as Food Waste Collector

3. Waste collectors who would like to provide food waste collection services to the ORRC1 are required to register administratively as a Registered Food Waste Collector (RFWC). The collectors shall complete and return the registration form together with the required documents (i.e. valid business registration certificate, valid vehicle licence(s), recent photos of the

It is the responsibility of the RFWC to take all necessary measures and precautions to ensure compliance of their operation with all applicable environmental, transport, hygiene, occupational safety, fire safety and labor ordinances and regulations.

Offenses and Handling of Violation

7. If RFWCs are in contravention of the requirements of the Code of Practices (the Code), the EPD will issue verbal advice, warning and/ or warning letter to the relevant collectors on the basis of the seriousness of the breach. In general, if the EPD has issued three warning letters to the same collector within the valid period of his/ her registration, the EPD will revoke the registration of the collector.

If the RFWCs are in contravention of serious offences such as use of registration certificates of other RFWCs to provide food waste collection and delivery services or violation of the laws of Hong Kong, etc. the EPD has the right to impose more severe disciplinary actions after confirming the allegation by investigation, e.g. early revocation of the registration of the RFWCs. The information of the revoked collectors will be removed from the EPD's website and the collectors will be required to return the registration certificate. Any re-registration application by the revoked collectors will not be processed within the subsequent six months.

Registration Certificate

8. RFWCs shall not transfer the original or copy of their registration certificates to non-designated employee or other person for custody/ use of the registration certificates, or use the registration certificates of other registrants to transport and deliver SSFW to the ORRC1.

The EPD will consider the past performances of the RFWCs in making decision on approval of the renewal application.

Change of Registration Information/ Disqualification

10. RFWCs who need to update the registration information such as the service area, or terminate the collection service, etc. should notify the EPD of the relevant changes as soon as possible. The EPD will publish an updated registry of RFWCs on its website regularly.
